Pedals and Packs Service Project
Angkor Wat - Siem Reap, Cambodia

March 23 – April 1, 2018

Imagine pairing your love for travel with your passion for making the world a better place. We want to help make it a reality for you.

Join Champlain Tours and the Wassmuth Center for Human Rights in the “Pedals and Packs” service project – Thirty years ago, Cambodia emerged from a brutal regime that resulted in complete destruction of schools. Since then, rebuilding the country’s educational system has been a top priority and considerable improvements have been made. However, despite these efforts, Cambodia’s education sector remains blemished by limited access to quality instruction, inadequate school facilities and high dropout rates. Access to and completion of primary school remain a pressing dilemma. Getting to a school where students can complete upper primary grades may mean traveling far distances from home. Having a bicycle is more than a child’s wish, it is a student’s transportation to his or her future.
